Circle of Excellence

Natalie Calow is a clinical nurse and the forensic program coordinator at Indiana University Health, Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis. As the forensic coordinator at this large level 1 trauma center, Natalie leads a new program called TeleSANE. The program enables assault victims to receive care locally without hospital transfer. With Natalie's leadership, the program prevented 53% of unnecessary hospital transfers for sexual assault exams in 2023. Relationship building with academic leaders and professional nursing organizations has enabled her to propel her vision and mission forward. Natalie's team recently formed a strong academic partnership with a local school of nursing to secure a three-year grant to provide sexual assault specialty training to nurses caring for patients in emergency settings across the state. The TeleSANE program and clinic continue to provide socially sensitive care during traumatic times and optimize post-assault care delivery.
